

Kelsey LaVigne

Kelsey LaVigne is founder of Figment Solutions, a growing leadership-development and organizational-design consultancy, and author of "All In: An Educator's Manual for Winning Hearts, Minds, and High Performance by Intentionally Leading School Culture" which debuted as the #1 new release in both charter schools and education administration. A popular speaker and workshop facilitator, she is known for inspiring and energizing audiences with her methodology for culture-building as the indispensable engine of school transformation and excellence.

LaVigne's experience in practical leadership, team development and strategic thinking was honed during her decade leading Brilla Schools, the pioneering public charter-school network in Bronx, NY renown for its strong culture, standard setting student achievement, and effectiveness at serving special populations. As chief of schools / superintendent, she led Brilla's growth from one school to five, built on a vision of all in staff and family involvement in support of student achievement. LaVigne began her career as a math teacher at Uncommon Schools under the umbrella of Teach for America.
